The predictable and the unpredictable.
This is what I love to capture in art.

Creating art is my passion and it is what brings me joy.

Julie Snyder

Statement

Painting is my path to a world where entire stories can be told through a captured moment in time.

My journey as a painter began at Scotland's foremost Glasgow School of Art, an extraordinary and inspiring artistic environment. After a few years, I spread my wings and traveled throughout Europe, finally settling in the Balearic Islands located off the coast of Spain. I arrived in the U.S. in 1984 and spent the next decade working in several artistic fields before turning to fine art.

To me, painting is much like poetry, an illusion and a vision. Instead of words, I use the brush to capture the essential fragments and facets of an intimate communication between the viewer and the subject.

My palettes are uniquely combined for each painting to create a harmony of colors that transcend real life. I love the moment when chaos and order dance with each other on the canvas – tight and loose brushwork, what's deliberate and what almost paints itself.

There is a timelessness that I bring to my work that allows me to easily transform the images of everyday life into a new reality. I am the passionate and joyful creator of these compositions that come back to live in the real world.

Biography

A native of Scotland, artist Julie Snyder studied drawing and painting at the Glasgow School of Art. The setting itself was extraordinary and inspiring. Architect Charles Rennie Macintosh designed the Art School in 1897, combining his unique style of Scottish tradition with Art Nouveau. Julie Snyder was encouraged to pursue her art by an artist-mother and a writer-father.

Julie's artistic career has spanned both sides of the Atlantic and included several years of residence in Southern Spain. Julie Snyder forged her craft as an illustrator in advertising, publishing and the motion picture industry, including Warner Bros.

Her work hangs in collections and galleries across the country. The National Art Museum of Sport honored her three times, including her paintings of boxers "Before the bell" and "Seeking the Target" in their annual exhibits and awarding Snyder the prestigious gold medal for painting in 2013 for her painting "Daily Drill". Her painting of chefs from the historic Blinn House "Blinn House Kitchen Chefs" hung in Contemporary Masters | Artistic Eden exhibition at the Pasadena Museum of History.
Segil Fine Art gallery and DanielakArt co-curated a solo show "Trinkets and Belles" for Ms. Snyder in January, 2009. "Visions of Dance," another collection of work was presented in a solo-show at the California Theatrical Youth Ballet in La Canada. She has exhibited with The Oil Painters of America at the Waterhouse Gallery, Santa Barbara; and the Howard/Mandeville Gallery in Washington; Addison Art Gallery in Massachusetts, The Boston International Fine Arts Show, Silvana Gallery's International Salon of Figurative Art and with the California Art Club at the landmark Ebell Club of Los Angeles. She is represented by Danielak Art of Pasadena, Segil Fine Art, Monrovia, Silvana Gallery, Glendale and Addison Art Gallery, Cape Cod.

Julie Snyder also finds time to promote the arts: she is a program coordintor for The Art Engine, and is a frequent seminar presenter for art marketing and art collecting workshops. She served for two years as president of the historic Businessmen's Art Institute of Los Angeles.

She now lives in Southern California, where she paints, holds workshops and teaches painting at the Cope Studios, Glendale and the McGroarty Arts Center, Tujunga. Julie Snyder is a sought-after artist in the Southern California figurative art scene. "I paint the figure, finding my subjects in many walks of life and I bring them into the studio to model. I love to recreate an impressionistic environment on the canvas that tells a story."

She paints to tell the stories of everyday people in their environment. Painting wet on wet with a balance of loose and tight brush work, she uses color and light to create interest and focus. Her paint quality is expressionistic as she captures the essential mood and gestures of her subjects. Julie Snyder also has a growing number of clients who commission her to paint portraits. Her intimate portraits are more than the traditional "head and shoulders" as she unerringly finds the special quality that makes each individual both unique and multifaceted.
